

Editor's Speak

This has been the fifth year since the journal has been running successfully. We have had an overwhelming response from our readers over this period of time, and every now and then, we accumulate numerous articles that make for interesting reading but do not necessarily fit into the format of the journal, namely topic based issues. This is the second time that, we are compiling such an issue which contains a variety of peer reviewed articles from authors across the world. More than an expression of our solidarity, this is a tribute to our ever growing readership. We are sure that, this issue will go a long way in spurring the intellectual mind to writing more articles and publishing them, which is the need of the hour today.
